Schrock Innovations adds on-site service technician Aaron Nelsen to bolster staff, reduce wait times for appointments

Lincoln, NE – November 11, 2005: Schrock Innovations hired Aaron Nelsen to work as a full-time on-site service technician. Typically, SI is booked solid for their popular in-home computer repair services. Schrock Innovations has been searching for the right person for almost two months, and Nelson looks to be a natural fit for the company.

“It can be a real challenge to find an individual who is charismatic, technically talented, honest, and trustworthy,” Kimberly Schrock, Director of SI Human resources said. “We had over 100 people apply for this job, and he appears to be a perfect fit.”

Nelsen will complete a vigorous training program in the Lincoln Service Center, and then train in the field with an experienced on-site technician. He is expected to be available for his own appointments by mid-December, and should provide needed appointment slots for Schrock Innovations customers.
